VOL 3: CLAREMONT HILL PRECINCT

Located between the railway line and Stirling Highway this precinct is located across a ridge giving views north into the Swanbourne precinct and south into the Bindaring precinct.

The perimeter roads of the precinct are heavily trafficked, particularly along the south and the east, whilst traffic management has made the traffic function of Barnfield Road and Parry Street more compatible with residential amenity.

The street pattern is predominantly N-S with E-W facing lots, however, the more recent subdivision and development activity in the eastern part of the precinct is based on E-W streets with development facing north and south.

The pattern of development within the precinct falls into three distinct zones:

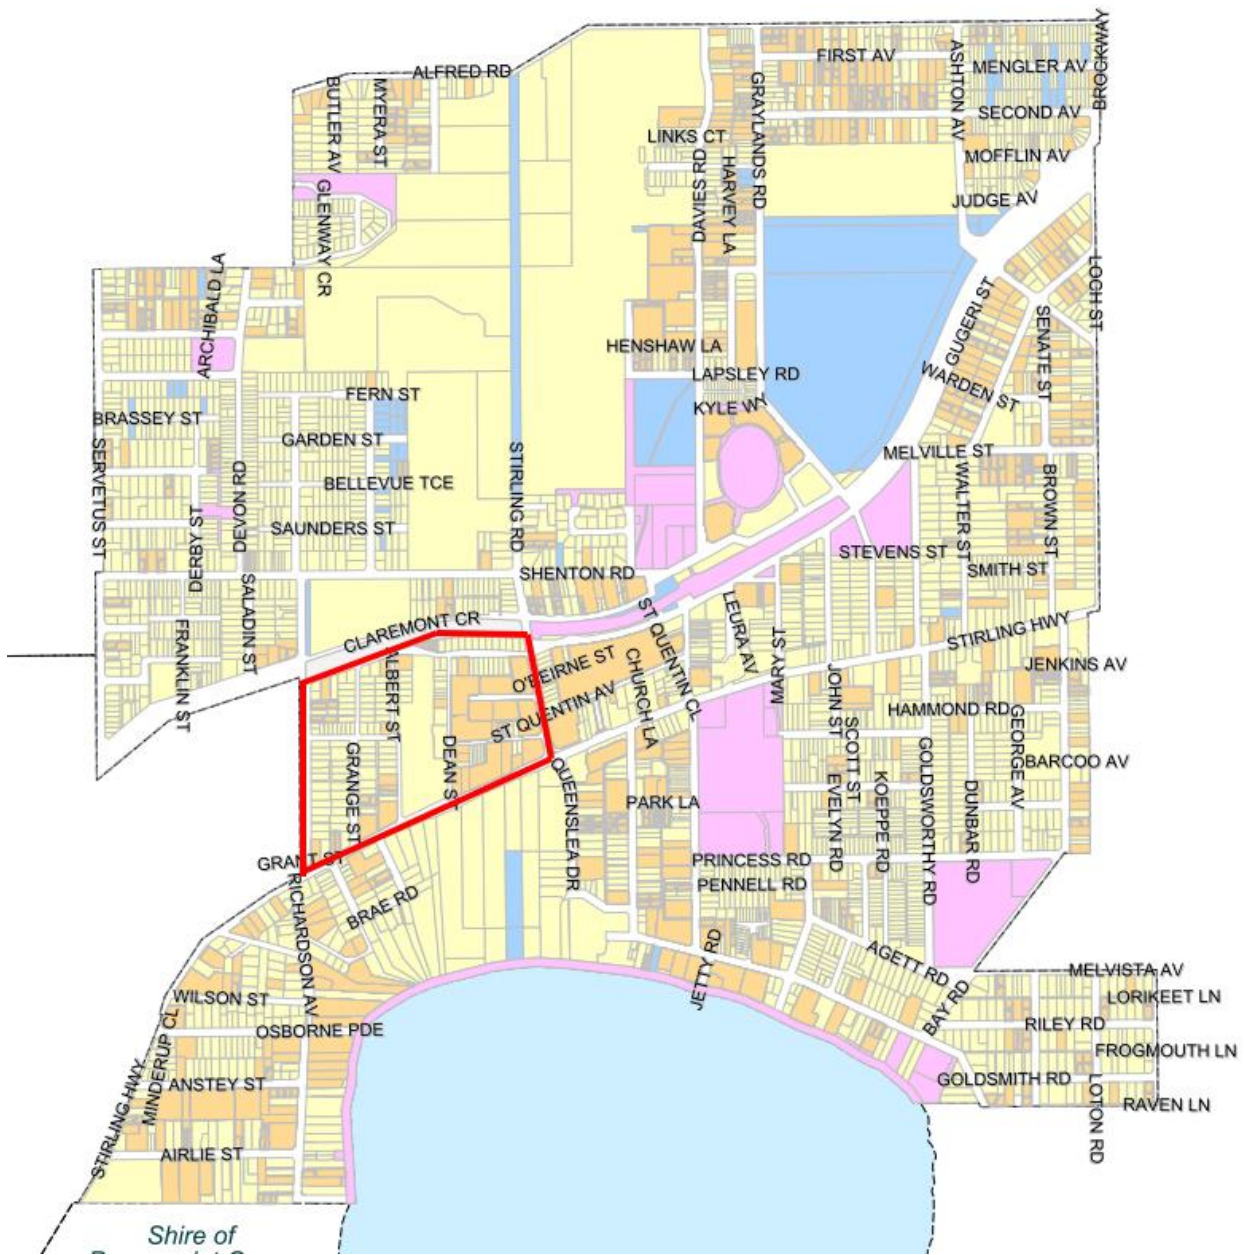

- the traditional high quality housing area of the Federation and Interwar periods now interspersed with infill development of single housing;
- the St Louis estate development occupying the site of the former St Louis School and occupying an irregular width land holding stretching from Stirling Highway to Barnfield Road;
- the area east of St Louis estate consisting of traditional Federation and Interwar single housing to Barnfield Road and the western side of Dean Street and low and medium rise flat and town house development, from the Mineral Boom period, fronting Stirling Road, Mount Street and Chatsworth Road, with a strip of retail/commercial development at the corner of Stirling Highway and Stirling Road.

The west of the precinct has a strongly defined pattern of street landscaping. Whilst still not mature the St Louis estate also has a defined landscape character, albeit setting a low rise medium density aged persons' estate.

The streetscapes are less cohesive in the more densely developed in the eastern zone of the precinct, which lacks effective landscaping that would help reduce the visual disruption that has resulted from the redevelopment of the area. Here, the higher densities and relatively lower lot sizes make privacy issues especially overlooking, noise and overshadowing of particular concern.

Landscaping on some sites has been effective in reducing the impact of higher density development, emphasizing the importance of the street tree planting in providing settings for developments with markedly different, even incompatible, characteristics.

Higher residential densities have resulted in car accommodation being overly dominant in some streets.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Social/Recreational
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Stone and metal
Architectural style	Victorian Georgian
Theme	1875-1897: Gentry Village
Values
Statement of Significance	Hinemoa is a fine example of a large Federation Bungalow residence that later represented the establishment of private schools as an important element of the social history of Claremont. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.

History	James Morrison subdivided Swan Location 702 in 1880. Location 702 is a 28-hectare block extending from Parry Street to Stirling Road and from the railway to Stirling Highway. Morrison offered the land in 8000sqm lots for £2 each. The Superintendent of Public Works, George Temple Poole, and insurance company principal George H. Johnston each bought a block overlooking Stirling Highway. Johnston built 'Hinemoa' which he occupied until 1907 when it was sold to Alexander Clark Munro, State Manager of Millar's Karri and Jarrah Co. When St Louis College occupied the site, the original house was used for the College's administration.
Integrity & Authenticity
Description	Single-storey brick structure. Square plan form with surrounding verandahs. The high-pitched roof is hipped and has high face brick chimneys with corbelled detail. The verandah has turned timber posts with decorative brackets, and criss-cross timber balustrade. The frontage is symmetrical with central front door flanked by single double hung windows.

Current use	Residential
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and tile
Architectural style	Federation Bungalow
Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	Single-storey Federation brick and tile house dating from 1903. It is a fine example of the Federation Bungalow style of architecture. The place has aesthetic value for its fine design and detailing as well as its contribution to the streetscape and the surrounding area. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History

Integrity & Authenticity
Description	Single-storey tuckpointed brick and hipped tile house on limestone foundation with a symmetrical façade. Central door with stucco arch entry leading to recessed front door with top and side lights, flanked by timber framed sash windows. Verandah is under a broken back tiled roof supported by timber posts with decorative brackets. Verandah wraps around each side. Two tall chimneys with stucco corbelling. Rendered bands across front elevation. Low rendered masonry wall to boundary with steel framed and mesh gate. Extensions to the right side (north) and the rear do not detract from the appearance of the house from the street.

Values
Statement of Significance	Grange Street is significant for the cohesive aesthetic demonstrated by the Interwar style that also shows Federation influences during the overlap period. The story of historical development in Grange Street is still mainly intact within the streetscape although there has been alteration to some places. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	From 1921 Claremont started to recover with significant growth into the 1930s. The main areas of development were in the western parts of the town and have left Claremont with a legacy of brick Interwar, California, Queen Anne and Arts and Crafts Bungalows. Grange Street is very much a product of the development that occurred in Claremont during the 'Interwar' period and the style of houses in the street reflects this. Where Grange Street is located was originally part of Swan Location 702 which was owned by James Morrison. The northern section of Grange Street, originally called Henry Street, was subdivided in 1896. The eastern side of the southern section was subdivided sometime after 1903. Grange Street does not appear in the Claremont rate books until 1913 so it is most likely to have been subdivided around this time. The southern section of Grange Street still contains eight places built between 1914 and 1917 and seven places built during the 'Interwar' period (1921-39).

Statement of Significance	Good example of a 1914 Federation Bungalow. The interior of the place is not of heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.

History	Original building stock in the Parry Street reflects the styles of houses built during the major periods of growth in the Town's development. The 'Consolidation' period saw rapid growth within the Town. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period was bounded by Mary, Guger, Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms. World War I and its immediate aftermath was a period of relative stagnation in the Town of Claremont's development. Between 1915 and 1921 the population fell from 7,000 to 5,500 and only one hundred houses were built. The majority of these houses were built in brick, none in stone, and a few in timber. They were built mainly in the Federation Bungalow and Interwar California Bungalow styles. From 1921 Claremont started to recover with significant growth into the 1930s. The main areas of development were in the western parts of the town and have left Claremont with a legacy of brick California, Queen Anne and Arts and Crafts Bungalows.
