VOL 7: SWANBOURNE PRECINCT

Existing development in this precinct has been influenced by physical features. Gridded street layouts have been placed over heavily undulating topography. It is also a traditional urban village neighbourhood focused on Swanbourne railway station, Swanbourne shopping centre, glebe like small lots between shopping and the school and larger lots beyond.

There is great variety in the size of lots between original housing estates. Within original housing estates there is consistency of lot sizes and subdivisional characteristics. This range is demonstrated by the following:

- 400 sq m lots with rear access between Narla Road and Cornwall Street; front access lots of 600 sq m fronting Rob Roy and Otway; and front access lots of about 300 sq m in parts of Devon Road.
- South of Shenton Road and west of Australind Street lots run N-S and E-W; east of Australind Street lots run N-S; and north of Shenton Road lots predominantly run N-S, apart from lots fronting Servetus Street, Devon Road and Wright Avenue.

House styles include Federation Queen Anne, Arts and Crafts and Bungalow, Interwar Californian Bungalow, Art Deco and post war and contemporary styles.

There are significant concentrations of heritage buildings throughout the area, particularly in Shenton and Devon Roads and Fraser, Wood, Otway and Saladin Streets. There is considerable consistency of compatible styles and periods within these areas of concentration.

There are marked differences between periods in the configuration of dwellings and lot usage. Prior to World War II many, if not most, dwellings faced the street across a small, open front garden. Many more recent dwellings are located behind or above substantial garages and carports. This difference marks the change from predominantly pedestrian orientation to vehicle orientation. This contrast can be ameliorated, but there is often a fundamental conflict in the relationship of house to street and consequently neighbour to neighbour.

The area is well treed with a balance between tree planting in the public and private domains. The treed nature of many streets has ameliorated the degree of incompatibility between developments of different periods, accommodating a wider range of building styles that would be less compatible on smaller sites.

Front fences, which were generally low and open, sometimes of timber pickets, have been intruded upon by brick walls and palisade fences.

The size and prominence of garages, carports and hard standing areas is becoming an increasing issue.

The topography increases the care needed to avoid adverse impacts on the amenity of neighbouring properties from overlooking and overshadowing.

Values
Statement of Significance	Demonstrates the early development of modest workers' cottages in Australind Street, opposite Scotch College. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History	Swan Location P1070, from which the western side of Australind Street resulted, was subdivided prior to 1898. In 1903, when the Town of Claremont Rate Books commence, there were four houses

	recorded in Australind Street. This means that over half of the western side of Australind Street was developed during the 'Birth of a Suburb' period, a period of rapid growth in Claremont, which saw a population increase from 76 in 1896 to 469 in 1902. A fifth house was constructed in the street during the 'Consolidation' period. No. 4, constructed in 1905, was a latecomer to the street at a time when Claremont was experiencing rapid growth. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915.

Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	Unusual form of Federation Queen Anne style, which forms a local landmark and contributes to the streetscape of the area. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History	Formerly 81 Shenton Road. No. 10 was constructed during a period of rapid growth within the Town. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period is the area bounded by Mary, Gugerl,

	Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Single-storey painted brick and Zinalume roof. Predominantly hipped, roof has expansive half-timbered roughcast gables to each street, break pitch faceted verandah central to both streets, and a decorative pyramidal roofed belvedere at the corner truncation, clad with flat sheet metal. Statement of Significance	An Interwar California Bungalow which contributes to the streetscape of the area. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	World War I and its immediate aftermath was a time of stagnation in the story of Claremont's development. When No. 15 was built, development in Claremont had started to recover with 423 more occupied buildings shown in the 1933 census and a significant push for development in the 1930s.

	This has left the town with a legacy of housing in either the Interwar California Bungalow style or timber late Federation Bungalow style.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Residential
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials
Architectural style
Theme
Values
Statement of Significance	Comprises a group of Federation Bungalow residences that demonstrate a similarity of design and detail of the style. Nos. 37, 39, 41 and 43 are all the same design and built by the same owner, H. T. Wright. Nos. 47, 49, 51 and 53 were built by various owners, are all similar in design, although H. T. Wright places have a slight variation. Nos. 51 and 53 are timber framed and clad with 53 of the same design as others, and 51 a symmetrical frontage, as for 59. This area of Claremont Crescent forms a cohesive cultural environment of workers' residences that demonstrate housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms with two more places built after World War I, and a third during the interwar period. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.

History	Location 702 comprises of the area bounded by Claremont Crescent, Stirling Road, Shenton Road and Australind Street. It was subdivided in the 1890s as the Railway Estate with the blocks fronting Claremont Crescent being sold for £50 each. The first house to be built in Claremont Crescent was number 53 and was constructed in weatherboard. By the end of 1905 there were six brick and three weatherboard houses on Claremont Crescent between Stirling Rd and Australind Street. Dr Wright owned a number of lots in this section of Claremont Crescent and built four brick houses at Nos. 37-43 during this period. Claremont Crescent had a mixture of brick and weatherboard houses and middle class and working class residents. It also had a mixture of commercial premises, including a factory that made stoves, radiators and metal conduits; two milk depots, one with an ice works; several corner shops; a wood yard; and, a horse paddock for cab owner Mr Williams who operated from the Claremont Railway Station. Most of the remaining original dwellings were built during the 'Consolidation' period. The 'Consolidation' period was one of rapid growth within the Town. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period is the area bounded by Mary, Guger, Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Commercial
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and tile
Architectural style	Federation Bungalow
Theme	1919-39: Interwar boom and bust
Values
Statement of Significance	A single storey brick Federation Bungalow style residence (1919), and a former milk depot (c.1920) to the rear of the site. It is the only known extant example of such a building located in the rear yard of an inner metropolitan residence in Western Australia. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape and for being entered in the State Register of Heritage Places, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	Location 702 comprises of the area bounded by Claremont Crescent, Stirling Road, Shenton Road and Australind Street. It was subdivided in the 1890s as the Railway Estate with the blocks fronting

	Claremont Crescent being sold for £50 each. The first house to be built in Claremont Crescent was number 53 and was constructed in weatherboard. By the end of 1905 there were six brick and three weatherboard houses on Claremont Crescent between Stirling Rd and Australind Street. Dr Wright owned a number of lots in this section of Claremont Crescent and built four brick houses at Nos. 37-43 during this period. Claremont Crescent had a mixture of brick and weatherboard houses and middle class and working class residents. It also had a mixture of commercial premises, including a factory that made stoves, radiators and metal conduits; two milk depots, one with an ice works; several corner shops; a wood yard; and, a horse paddock for cab owner Mr Williams who operated from the Claremont Railway Station. The majority of the remaining original dwellings were built during the 'Consolidation' period. The 'Consolidation' period was one of rapid growth within the Town. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period is the area bounded by Mary, Guger, Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms. World War I and its immediate aftermath was a time of stagnation in the story of Claremont's development. Two of the remaining original homes were built during this time and a third during the 'Interwar' period (1921-39).
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Design as for No. 49. Single-storey painted brick. Hipped clay tiled roof with half-timbered roughcast gable to the projecting half front and return hipped skillion verandah that extends across the front. Additions 1984. Former milk depot c.1920 at rear of site. The Former Milk Depot is the only known extant example of such a building located in the rear yard of an inner metropolitan residence in Western Australia; It is representative of the once common practice of distributing milk from depots situated within inner metropolitan residential areas to the local consumer, and delivered with the use of horse-drawn carts, and later, motorised delivery trucks.

Statement of Significance	Claremont Crescent Shops represent a way of life and has demonstrated a resilience to accommodate changes of use, to still be relevant in contemporary society. The extent of interwar development is significant. The form of some of the shops has changed and demonstrates historical connections. The shops also represent a sense of place for generations of residents who have utilised the various services over time, coming together in informal meetings at the shops, close to Swanbourne Railway Station.

	Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.
History	Claremont Crescent developed from the late 1880s with a mixture of brick and weatherboard houses and middle class and working class residents. The Swanbourne railway station, initially known as the Congdon Street station, opened in 1904 and directly opposite it a group of shops were established on the Crescent, some replacing earlier weatherboard houses. A photo of the shops, dating from c.1920s-1930s, shows a neat homogenous group with a timber floored verandah running their length. The Swanbourne Hotel (Interwar Art Deco) was located on the adjoining corner of Franklin Street. Over the years the shops have undergone changes and rebuilding.

Current use	Commercial
Former use	Commercial
Constr. Materials	Brick and metal
Architectural style	Federation Free Classical
Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	Simple Federation Free Classical commercial building, once a group of shops, which contributes to the streetscape. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.

History	This building on the corner of Saladin Street and Claremont Crescent was originally four shops, numbered 97-103, that have been amalgamated into one. They are possibly the oldest shops in the complex and were established by storekeeper Mr Salkild, who is recorded here in the 1904 Rate Books, at which time the property was valued at £500. In 1920 the property was owned by Matthew Price and the shops were a draper, confectioner, bootmaker and Sharp Bros. motor and cycle works. The confectionary store was a mixed business during the 1930s and 1940s and Mrs Chappell's drapery store was at No. 97. Bassett Bros. greengrocers took over Sharp Bros. store in the 1930s and in 1946 they acquired No. 101 and expanded their business. By 1960, Bassett Bros. owned the entire four shops, occupying 101-103, with Mrs Chappell's drapery and haberdashery in 97-99. In 1990, the entire shop space was Brackley Cellars, and in the 21st century the premises were occupied by Liquor Baron.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Single-storey painted and rendered masonry set of shops that are now a single place. The timber framed bullnose verandah over pavement wraps the truncated street corner. The masonry parapet is simple with a rectangular stepped parapet at the truncation and an entry on the more expansive frontage. All the windows and original entries are boarded or painted over.

Theme	1966-2019: Modern Claremont
Values
Statement of Significance	Site is of historical value for previous uses and associations. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.
History	There were two shops on this site by 1911 and by 1920 the place had developed to hold a small goods shop, two grocers, butcher, hairdresser, and furniture dealer. Mrs Jessie Oldham owned the

	property in 1940. In 1949, No. 105 was P. Nire's boot repair shop, Nos. 107-109 was J. S. Holbrook's grocery store, No. 113 housed the bicycle dealership of Bruce Small, and A. Karhu's boot repair was at No. 115. Mr. Holbrook had a grocery store in the Shenton Road shops in the 1920s. He also held a gallon license for selling alcohol. This license was eventually transferred to the premises on the corner of Saladin Street, which became the liquor store. In 1960, the property was owned by Arthur Weaver and the occupants were Freecorn's grocery, Cash Traders, butchers Joseph &amp; Levi Baker, a grocer, men's hairdresser and a bootmaker. Around 1984, the pharmacy and Swanbourne Post Office, which had occupied No. 127A, moved into No. 115. In 1990, the tenants of the building comprised a fish and chip shop, Rondell Fashion, Studio 111, a pharmacy and a butcher.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Single-storey masonry shops with a tiled parapet that extends to form a narrow awning along the expansive frontage. The shops open off a central atrium arcade, with stairs up to the rear parking area. The building is set further back on the site than the adjoining original shops. Shopfronts are aluminium-framed glass.

Former use	Commercial
Constr. Materials	Brick and metal
Architectural style	Interwar Free Classical
Theme	1919-39: Interwar boom and bust
Values
Statement of Significance	Fine intact example of a shop of the period and demonstrates continuity of use as a newsagency. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.
History	This is a shop with attached residence accessed on the side laneway. It is on the site of a 1902-03 weatherboard house built for E. L. Davies around 1904, valued at £225. The house was rented out in

	the 1910s and in 1920 it was owned by Mrs Cavalier and occupied by Mrs Maynard. In 1930 it was the home of Edward Cox but within three years the shop had been built, housing A. H. Mercer's newsagency, with Post office and Commonwealth Bank agency. Mr. Mercer is recorded as the postmaster. The place possibly comprised two shop spaces originally. No. 119 has remained a newsagency throughout its occupation, although the post office agency has moved location several times (it was previously at No. 109). In 1949 the business was run by Charles Wegner and in 1960 by J. D. Nichols. It has traded as the Swanbourne Newsagency for over 30 years. The residence has two bedrooms, lounge, kitchen and bathroom, enclosed verandah and outdoor living area. In 2009, the property was on the market for $3.3 million. With a rear access to Rob Roy Street, it was advertised as having rear development potential.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Single-storey painted and rendered masonry on the street frontage and truncated corner with face brick evident on secondary street. The masonry parapet is simple with ball topped pilasters delineating the front and truncated sections, with a triangle apex over the truncation. The truncated corner entry has the original terrazzo flooring and tiling to dado height with Art Deco motifs on the main elevation. There is a flat boxed suspended verandah awning over the pavement; but not over the corner of laneway.

Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.
History	123 Claremont Crescent occupies part of the land parcel originally associated with a weatherboard house at No. 119. The premises comprise a double shop space, garage/store, and residence, built in

	1936. The residential section, comprising a bedroom and sleepout, was accessed through the garage. In 1946, the garage was extended with an upper level for use as an office. It is now 123a. From the mid-1920s, prior to the construction of the shop, James H. Barnes was the occupier of the site. In 1949, George Paterson's mixed business was at No. 123 and in 1960 it was W. J. Leader's delicatessen.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Single-storey painted and rendered masonry with two shop fronts adjoining with the corner shop at No. 121. The masonry parapet is simple with ball topped pilasters delineating the front sections, with a double parapet length of one shop and a single section over the other that still retains original shopfront elements. The more expansive shopfront has a dado with glazing above, and a double timber framed glazed central entry. A suspended boxed canopy extends along the entire frontage stepping down from the corner shop canopy. Recessed on the side, is a gable fronted double storey element of painted brick with a set of three windows central on the first-floor front and a protruding aluminium framed glazed element at ground floor level.

History	In 1905, No. 125 had a weatherboard house on the site valued at £180 and occupied by boilermaker R. D. Munro. The existing two-storey brick premise, with a shop on the ground floor and a residence above, was built in 1954. The place has been a hardware store for many years. In 1960, it was run by Mr Archibald. In the early 1980s, the hardware store was acquired by former accountant Peter Wilson, who lived in the residence above the shop with his wife and two young daughters. They were still there in 2002, trading as Swanbourne Hardware, a member of the Makit chain.

History	In 1920, this was the site of Miss Clara Moody's residence and dressmaking establishment, which occupied the current sites of No. 133-137. In the mid-1930s, Miss Moody had a single shop built beside her house and in 1940, two more shops were added, replacing the house. In 1949, No. 133 was the dental surgery of Ian Currie, No. 135 housed Mrs Lilian Leslie's cake shop and No. 137 was the Commonwealth Bank. By 1960 the Commonwealth Bank owned the building and little had changed except for the owners of each business. Mr Hazelhurst had the dental surgery and Mrs Jones the cake shop. By 1990, the Bank had expanded to occupy the entire building removing the dividing walls and bricking up much of the shop windows in the façade. In 2000, the Book Cafe was occupying the entire space.

Current use	Commercial
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and tile
Architectural style	Interwar California Bungalow
Theme	1919-39: Interwar boom and bust
Values
Statement of Significance	Representative California Bungalow, contributing to the streetscape. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.

History	This land was originally the site of a plumber's shed and owned by plumber William Nicholson. In 1929, he built a brick and tile California Bungalow residence, and he may have continued to operate his business from the site. He was still in residence when a small shop had been established on the east front, occupied by men's hairdresser Carl Cassettai. The house was later divided into two residences and alterations and additions in the 1980s-90s have converted it to offices.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Located at the end of the row of shops, the elevated residence, set back from the limestone retaining wall of the front and side boundary, is inconsistent with the adjoining shops of the same period, except for the front addition (may have been the garage) with a front gable as for the residence, and aluminium framed glazed 'shopfront' aligned with the adjoining shop. The residence has an expansive front half-timbered gable, and a central front rectangular bay window with clay-tiled awning over, as for the roof.

Current use	Commercial
Former use	Transport/Communications
Constr. Materials	Brick and metal
Architectural style	Federation Free Classical
Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	Originally built as stables for No. 4, has been operating as a veterinary clinic since the 1930s. Rarity of extant stables in Town of Claremont. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History	This section of Devon Road is of considerable significance for its historical value associated with the Maitland Estate in 1897, including the expansive weatherboard residence, in 1899 by Alexander Wright. In 1906 Mrs Emma McKenzie, wife of the Hon Robert McKenzie MLA, and Mayor of Kalgoorlie in 1897, became the owner of the property and constructed the stables. In 1939, Dr Hogarth acquired the stables and residence, and relocated his already established Swanbourne veterinary Clinic.

	Hogarth was instrumental in establishing the Shenton Park Dog Refuge. The residence at 4 Devon Road is a fine representative example of the timber framed and clad Federation Bungalow architectural style, of which very few examples remain.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity	Medium. Only the southern section of two gables is original, with additions to the north in 1978 and 1991.
Description	Single-storey rendered and painted brick. The Zinacalume-clad roof is hipped with three distinctive gables on the frontage, with a skillion verandah between two of the gables. It is noted that the most significant portion of the building is the front and side elevation.

Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Timber and metal

Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	The residence at 4 Devon Road is a fine example of the timber framed and clad Federation Bungalow architectural style, of which very few examples remain in the district. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History	The original owner, in 1897, was Alexander James Wright who built a weatherboard cottage named 'Maitland'. He owned eight lots in the road. His wife Rosina was born in Maitlands Tasmania. He was a dentist and had associations with the Methodist church and Freemasons. In 1906, the property was transferred to Emma Mary McKenzie, wife of the Hon Robert Donald McKenzie MLA (Wilson

	Government). McKenzie and wife built their home at No 4. He was Mayor in Kalgoorlie in 1897. The imposing house at No 4 was known as McKenzie's Folly and included garage and stables. He went back to Kalgoorlie in 1907, but retained ownership of the eight lots, during 1911-17 the residence was a private school run by Mrs J Jones. In 1922-29, it was occupied by one of Robert and Emma's sons: Charles, &amp; his family. In 1929, likely due to death of Robert McKenzie, the eight lots were subdivided. Arthur Sherwood a bank official and later the Commissariat for the Land Dept became the owner of the residence until 1944. No. 2 Devon Road was built as stables to service the house next door at No. 4. Dr Thomas Hogarth, a Canadian veterinary graduate, purchased the stables and gardener's quarters at No. 4 Devon Road from Arthur Sherwood in 1939. Later in 1943, he purchased the entire property. He established Swanbourne Vet Centre during 1939 in the stables and gardener's quarters of No. 4. Hogarth was also instrumental in establishing the dog refuge in Shenton Park. Hogarth practised as a veterinary surgeon from 1939 to 1962 and then sold the property to a Department of Agriculture veterinarian Dr Ian Miller. Miller practised at the site until his death in March 1988. In 1968 Dr Tony Vigano joined the practice as a partner with Miller. Vigano purchased No. 2 in 1989 from Miller's estate. Additions and alterations were made to the building in 1978 and 1991. Leadlights at No. 4 have initials RD Mc who was there 1907-1910.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	The side of the residence is the road frontage delineated by an entry portico that responds to the verandah. The single-storey expansive painted weatherboard residence has a double-hipped roof with faceted and rectangular bays expressed in the roof form. The roof is clad with Colorbond sheeting. The separate roof of the perimeter verandah is bullnose. The verandah is detailed with spaced vertical timber valance and balustrade and turned timber posts. Four corbelled white rendered chimneys have pairs of clay pots.

Statement of Significance	The site of the Swanbourne Primary School is significant in representing the strong historical association with the school from 1905. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	The former Swanbourne Primary School was a single-storey school building built by the public Works Department from 1905, to provide school facilities for the children in the expanding area of Claremont, north of the Railway line. Almost immediately accommodation at the school proved inadequate and the

	government looked to purchase additional land to make room for further expansion of the school however prices at the time were considered too high. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• 1912 additions to the school</li> <li>• 1914 Additions</li> <li>• 1917 adjoining lots purchased</li> <li>• 1919 Additions</li> <li>• 1921 Additions</li> <li>• 1946 Classroom Additions</li> <li>• 1949 Classroom additions</li> <li>• 1953 Additions</li> <li>• 1963 Additions</li> <li>• 1974 Additions</li> </ul> The School was built during the Town of Claremont's 'Consolidation' period. The 'Consolidation period' was a period of rapid growth within the Town. Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households and businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period is the area bounded by Mary, Guger, Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Residential
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Timber and metal
Architectural style	Federation Queen Anne
Theme	1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values
Statement of Significance	11 Saladin Street is a fine and rare example of a two-storey weatherboard Federation Queen Anne residence set in landscaped gardens of a double lot site, redesigned by John Oldham in the 1960s. It was the long-term residence of prominent landscape architect John Oldham, and his wife journalist and author Ray Oldham, and their daughter Jan Oldham, cookery editor, writer, and illustrator. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been included in the State Register of Heritage Places and for having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3.
History	Servetus, Otway, Rob Roy, Australind and Saladin Streets were all named after Western Australian coastal steamships and they may have all been created around the same time. Swan Location P1070, from which Saladin Street resulted, was subdivided prior to 1898. In 1903, when the Town of Claremont Rate Books commence, there were three houses recorded in Saladin Street. By the end of the 'Consolidation' period, a period of vigorous growth in Claremont, which saw a housing increase from 428 in 1903 to 1240 in 1915, there were nine houses in Saladin Street. This indicates that nearly half of the development in the street occurred during the 'Consolidation' period. A further five houses were built in the street during the 'Interwar' period, another significant period in the Town's development.

Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	The expansive two-storey timber framed weatherboard clad residence is central in a landscaped setting with front and rear street frontages, and the secondary rear street being the dominant front. The 'front' features a prominent double storey faceted bay and return verandahs that extend around to the 'rear' (Saladin Street). The verandahs have turned timber posts and decorative timber valance and brackets and are enclosed at first floor level. Upstairs rooms were fire damaged in 2009.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Residential
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and tile
Architectural style	Interwar California Bungalow
Theme	1919-39: Interwar boom and bust
Values
Statement of Significance	A bungalow, evidencing an identifiable Federation aesthetic. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	Servetus, Otway, Rob Roy, Australind, and Saladin Streets were all named after Western Australian coastal steamships and they may have all been created around the same time. The Swanbourne subdivisions west of Devon Road were not created by subdividing old Pensioner Guard lots, but were new subdivisions put in place between c.1898 and 1903 prior to the Swanbourne railway station being

	built. The Swanbourne subdivision by A. Paterson &amp; Co included lots on Servetus Street from Claremont Crescent as far as Wood Street. Although Servetus Street was created by 1903 there were only two recorded occupants on the street in this year. By the end of the 'Consolidation' period, a period of vigorous growth in Claremont, which saw a housing increase from 428 in 1903 to 1240 in 1915, there were fourteen houses in Servetus Street. Joe Jordan built the house at 32 Servetus Street, Swanbourne, in 1927 and lived there until he died in 1956. The property was then transferred to Annie Margaret Jordan who was still living there in 1959. The original plans for the house, dated 1927, are held in the Town of Claremont archives. An undated later plan shows the proposed addition of a garage and wash house. Plans for the Metropolitan Sewerage Scheme dated 1929 show the house at 32 Servetus Street to be built in the manner of the original plans. It shows both a front and back verandah, a toilet attached to the rear of the house and an out building half way down the lot.
Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	The single-storey painted brick building has a symmetrical frontage with central front door flanked by sets of three casement windows detailed in diamond leadlight. The simple hipped roof is clad with Marseille tiles and extends over the full width front verandah. The valance is a simple board with horizontal brackets to the square timber posts. The elevated position reveals a limestone foundation.

DESCRIPTION

Current use	Educational
Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and tile
Architectural style	Victorian Georgian; Federation Queen Anne; Federation Bungalow
Theme	1875-1897: Gentry Village; 1898-1918: Creating a Town
Values	Barrett House is a very fine example of a large residence designed in the Federation Queen Anne style, featuring a complex roof scape of steeply pitched tile roof, turret, tower platform, parapet walls and tall decorative chimneys, and retaining extensive interior detailing including stained glass, tessellated tile entrance hall floor, fireplaces, moulded columns, timber wall panelling, sections of original plasterwork and integrated copper fly screens, which combines with the mature plantings and adjacent school buildings of its setting to create a landmark cultural environment.
Statement of Significance	Scotch College Group includes the exemplar Barrett House and the fine representative architectural examples of 'Ravenscroft' and the Headmaster's House. The historical connections with Scotch College and significant identities further demonstrate the significance of the group.

	Included in the Heritage List for reasons of having been included in the State Register of Heritage Places and having been constructed before 1910, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(a) of LPS3. Classified by the National Trust of Australia (WA), meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 4 of LPS3.
History	Barrett House (1900) Richard Henry 'Doc' Barrett (d.1922) started work in Perth in the late 1890s as a stockbroker and City of Perth councillor. Shortly after he commissioned a residence in Swanbourne, the stock market slumped and he was never to live there. Instead, after a period of (presumably) financial uncertainty, Barrett was appointed City of Perth valuator around 1906, a position he was to retain until his death in 1922 aged 56. His other interests included the Ugly Men's Association, and a devout supporter of West Perth Football Club. In February 1900, architect Henry S. Trigg called for tenders for a large villa residence, which was to be built for Barrett. This is known to have been completed by end of the year, however, as noted above, Barrett's financial situation was transformed by the slump and he appears to have never spent any time at the house. The property was offered for sale in March 1903, when the real estate agent appears to have decided it would be difficult to sell as a residence, and so advertised its other possibilities: That beautiful Residence recently erected by Mrs. R. H. Barrett, upon portion of Swan Loc. 702, containing 7 acres 3 roods 37 perches of land. The situation is unique, the house having been erected on high land, commands a lovely view of the ocean and surrounding country. It is close to Congdon-Street, where a new railway station is to be erected [now Swanbourne Station]. It should be suitable for a College, Sanatorium, or Hotel. The land has a frontage of 929 links to Sea View-terrace, 1,158 links to Claremont-crescent, 1,152 links to Shenton-road and 511 links to another property. The residence, of which inspection is invited, is beautifully built, and provided with fine, broad verandahs and every possible convenience. It was advertised again in July 1904, now described as 'Craig's Estate', presumably after the purchaser in the previous year. The building was purchased by J. M. Ferguson, on behalf of the Presbyterian Church, with the intention of turning it into a school, for £4,700. He sold it to the Church for £4,200. Architects Hobbs, Smith and Forbes were engaged to plan additions of dormitories and class-rooms costing £2,000. Scotch College had been founded in 1897, opening in Shearer's Memorial Hall with 29 male pupils, and it continued there until the end of 1904, when they got notice to quit. They then transferred to the new Swanbourne site for the start of the next academic year, by which time they had 79 pupils. The building was officially opened by Sir John Forrest on 8 February 1905. The building occupies one of the most commanding positions about Claremont, and is close to the railway. The building, as it stood, was too small, so an extensive wing was, built by Messrs. Hobbs, Smith, and Forbes, architects, and the whole place was altered and renovated in such a way as to make it eminently suitable for the requirements of a first class boys' school. In the main building are the principal's quarters, a dormitory for the small boys, a large dining-room and class-room; and the kitchen and other domestic quarters. The new wing is detached from the old buildings, and is two-storeyed. Its ground floor provides accommodation for a school-room 60ft. by 23ft., which will easily contain 100 boys, and two class-rooms 24ft. by 16ft. The upper floor is reserved exclusively for the sleeping accommodation of masters and boys. There are two large and airy dormitories (48ft. by 16ft.) for the boys of the upper and middle school, and bed-rooms for two resident masters. The lavatory arrangements are ample, and electric light is installed throughout the buildings. A portion of the large balcony, which almost surrounds the building, is to be turned into a gymnasium. The spacious grounds of the college have been properly fenced and gravelled approaches have been made. When they first entered into possession the building was surrounded by scrub, and during the first year the ground was cleared by the pupils. In 1906 the committee spent £250 in levelling the cricket ground, building a gymnasium, and erecting three additional rooms to the original building. The attendance continued to increase, and by 1907 totalled 160 scholars, and it was necessary to erect another new wing.

Integrity &amp; Authenticity
Description	Scotch College Group is a complex of educational buildings, including both purpose-built and two former residences which were adapted. These are set on two sites on Shenton Road. Barrett House (76 Shenton Road) has a single-storey, face tuckpointed brick work and clay tiled roof. High pitched roof, asymmetrical plan form, hipped, turreted and gabled roof, encircled verandahs and timber joinery. The Residence (76 Shenton Road, adjacent to Barrett House) is single storey. High, tiled, hipped, and gabled roofs with prominent chimneys, tuckpointed red brick walls and extensive verandahs. Ravenscroft (78 Shenton Road) is single storey with painted brickwork. The hipped Colorbond roof features half-timbered gables, namely on two protruding gable walls to each street front and the corner truncation.

Statement of Significance	The form of the shops remains reasonably intact and represents a sense of place for generations of residents. No. 95 has a significant association with the founder of the Aherns Department Store, who originally owned this shop. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	Prior to European settlement the locality of Swanbourne and the wider district of Claremont was known as Mooro and was associated with aboriginal people of the Whudjuck Nyungar group. The Swan River Colony was established in 1829 and the area where the Town of Claremont is located did not start to develop until the 1850s. This is when a subdivision occurred to provide accommodation and land for the Pensioner Guards who had accompanied convicts to the colony. From 1875 onwards large tracts of land were acquired by speculators and in the 1880s and 1890s these lots were further subdivided for housing lots. Initially the people who took up these lots were the moderately wealthy and the merchants of the day.

The area was served by the Perth to Fremantle Road from the 1860s and the completion of the Perth to Fremantle railway in 1881 enabled the area to be more densely settled. The municipality of Claremont was declared in 1898 and at this time the majority of the population was clustered around Stirling Highway and Bay View Terrace. During the early 1900s many of Claremont's major buildings and institutions were established.

The Swanbourne area became more settled in the early 1900s with the advent of the railway and the establishment of the Claremont North State School in 1905 in Devon Road. The name Swanbourne commemorates the English home of Thomas Francis Fremantle, 1st Baron of Cottesloe. He was the brother of Captain Charles Howe Fremantle RN, after whom Fremantle is named.

When the Town of Claremont Rate Books commence in 1903 there were a total of 45 houses already built in Shenton Road. The majority of the 19 houses on the northern side of the street were concentrated between Devon Road and Stirling Road and were mainly brick with a few also in weatherboard and stone. By 1915, the end of the 'Consolidation' period, there were a further nine houses built in the street and four of these nine were built on the northern side between Derby Road and Servetus Street.

Population and housing grew steadily with 701 households or businesses in 1905, 872 in 1910 and 1,240 in 1915. The largest area containing houses of this period is the area bounded by Mary, Guger, Melville and Loch Streets and Stirling Highway. Surviving heritage homes from this period indicate that housing types were mainly Federation Bungalow and Federation Queen Anne with three to five rooms.

In 1904 the Post Office Directory lists seven people living between Stirling Road and Devon Road. Two shops are first recorded on the corner of Devon Road in 1905, occupied by fruiter Charles Knapp and grocers Tilley & Mugridge. These are the two shops at No. 95 and 93, which had residential sections at the rear. By 1908, the fruit shop was being run by C. F. Williams and Tom Dawson had the grocery store.

The shop at No. 93 continued to be occupied as a greengrocer, and in 1920 Duncan Stewart, greengrocer and confectioner was in the place. In 1925 Mrs L. M. Dhue was running a tea room but by 1930 it was William Bealing's mixed business. By 1938, Mrs Ada Harris was running the mixed business there and she remained throughout the war years to at least 1949. In 1966, No. 93 had a suspended awning added at the front, and new interior fitouts in 1982 and 2003. In 2004, the place was Choux Café.

No. 95, on the corner of Devon Street, was the typical corner grocery store for most of its life, but it was vacant during the latter years of World War I. John Holbrook was the grocer in 1920 and by 1925 Mrs S. Holbrook was manning the store. In the 1930s W. Bennett and Mrs V. S. Lovell followed, and Mrs P. Woolley had the premises in the 1940s. John Holbrook's grocery store later appeared in the Swanbourne Shops in Claremont Cres.

No. 95 had opportunities for development with its two street frontages. In 1966, the shop front on Devon Street was removed and a suspended awning put in place. The following year, a boundary wall and carport were added. In 1983, the use changed from delicatessen to office and the residential portion would have become part of the office function. By 1992, the place was occupied by two tenants, a hairdresser and a fabric shop, at which time the rear was extended, bullnose verandahs were added around the street corner and at the rear, and new timber frame windows replaced the aluminium frames that had been installed at some earlier time. In 1998, Swanbourne Dental Centre moved into the front space and the interior fit out was upgraded.

No. 91 - Lot 2 Strata Plan 9571

In 1915, the shop at No. 91 and the adjoining house at No. 89 were built as part of the same development for T. Ahern. In 1917, he was still in residence but the property was owned by Stevens & Son, at which time a cart shed and horse stall were provided in the back yard, accessed by a right-of-way behind the two corner shops. In 1920, the shop is listed in the Post Office Directory as the business premises of chemist John Rowe, but by 1925 Steven & Sons had opened their butcher's business in the place and remained until 1937. William Sweeney operated the business in the 1940s. In the 1970s, the shop continued to function as butcher's premises and the house at No. 89 was still part of the shop development. In 1981, the shop at No. 91 and the house at No. 89 were separated on Strata Plan 9571. In 2012, No. 95 is John Burridge's military antiques store and the house at No. 89 is in other ownership.

Integrity &amp; Authenticity

Statement of Significance	Wood Street represents development from 1904 (No. 13, and No. 5 in 1907) with three houses in the Interwar Period, at Nos. 6, 10 and 17. The residences represent the architectural styles of several periods, in a modest manner. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	The Swanbourne subdivisions west of Devon Road were not created by subdividing old Pensioner Guard lots, but were new subdivisions put in place between c.1898 and 1903 prior to the Swanbourne

By 1913 there were four people living in the same area before two people joined them on the left-hand side of the street. One of these was W. H. Angrove. At the end of the 'Consolidation' period the street had nine people living within the Claremont section of streetscape; this number was still the same in 1921 at the start of the 'Interwar' period. Numbers had risen to 12 by the end of that period, were at 14 in 1949 and currently stand at 18.

Former use	Residential
Constr. Materials	Brick and metal
Architectural style	Interwar California Bungalow
Theme	1919-39: Interwar boom and bust
Values
Statement of Significance	Good example of an Interwar California Bungalow, contributing to the streetscape. The interior of the building is not of cultural heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History	The Swanbourne subdivisions west of Devon Road were not created by subdividing old Pensioner Guard lots, but were new subdivisions put in place between c.1898 and 1903 prior to the Swanbourne railway station being built. The Swanbourne subdivision by A. Paterson & Co created Wood, Fraser, Derby and Deakin Streets and the western part of Otway Street.

	However, although Wood Street was created by 1902/3 the first recorded occupations were not until 1905 when Captain Cutler built his house there on the right side of the road between Devon Road and Servetus Street. By 1913 there were four people living in the same area before two people joined them on the left-hand side of the street. One of these was W. H. Angrove. At the end of the 'Consolidation' period the street had nine people living within the Claremont section of streetscape; this number was still the same in 1921 at the start of the 'Interwar' period. Numbers had risen to 12 by the end of that period, were at 14 in 1949 and currently stand at 18. Half of the historical streetscape development therefore occurred during the 'Consolidation' period with infilling occurring in the 'Interwar' and 'Post-War Aging' periods.

Statement of Significance	An elegant, unusual example of a small-scale residence with a one-room frontage flanked by side verandahs. The interior of the place is not of heritage significance. Included in the Heritage List for reasons of contributing to the townscape, meeting the requirements of Section 78 Clause 3(c) of LPS3.
History
Integrity &amp; Authenticity

Description	The single-storey small-scale residence has a dominant one-room frontage flanked by side verandahs with deeply recessed walls, one with the entry. The dominant frontage is a roughcast gable infill with a central set of three casement windows with a bracketed shingle clad awning over. The roof is a symmetrical gable with the ridge central to the dominant wall, and breaks pitch over the side verandahs. The verandahs are supported by square timber posts with simple elongated horizontal brackets. The posts form pairs on the front corners, with lattice between. The side verandahs have simple spaced vertical timber balustrades similar to the front fence.
